1. Approximately 70 troops of the Public Safety Frontier Defense (PSFD) are stationed at Hutung (N 22-49, E 115-57) under the command of CHEN Min Ju (7115/0682/1172), a native of nearby Lufeng (N 22-58, E 115-38). These troops, mostly natives of neighboring villages, wear canvas shoes and khaki and silver-gray uniforms with the Chinese People's Liberation Army badge on the left breast. Their arms include two light machine guns, four submachine guns, four Mausers and over fifty "65" carbines.<sup>1</sup>
2. About 70 PSFD troops are at Sanmen (N 22-26, E 114-38). Two light machine guns and two trench mortars are emplaced on the roof of a building used by the troops and customs officials. A trench approximately one mile long, running from north to south, has been dug at the rear of the village.
3. At Anchikang (2542/7741/3263), a village on the Tahsing peninsula (N 22-33, E 114-55), an observation post on a hill is manned by five soldiers who maintain a 24-hour watch. An additional 40 PSFD troops are in the village of Yutzu (0962/0098), also on the Tahsing peninsula. There are about 20 troops billeted in three stone buildings atop Tahsing hill. A number of fox-holes have been dug there; a trench about one mile long and camouflaged by branches has been dug at mid-level on the seaward slope of the hill.
4. About 80 PSFD troops are quartered in two temples and civilian houses in P'inghai (N 22-37, E 114-53). An observation post is manned on a hill-top nearby.
5. About 30 naval personnel are garrisoned on the Tahsing peninsula. Motorized junks, manned by naval personnel, frequently dock at P'inghai and Anchikang.
